Xiangyu Zhang, Shaoqing Ren, and Jian Sun Abstract—Existing deep convolutional neural networks (CNNs) require a fixed-size (e.g., 224 224) input image. This requirement is widely viewed as a central driver of economic growth (e.g., Romer 1990, Aghion and Howitt 1992). As a result, many countries use a wide variety of policies to spur innovation, ranging from tax incentives to patent reform. This paper introduces a novel architecture for deep convolutional neural networks, called Spatial Pyramid Pooling (SPP), which can handle input images of arbitrary size. This architecture is simple and easy to understand, and it can be applied to a wide variety of convolutional neural network architectures. We demonstrate that our architecture can achieve state-of-the-art performance on a number of image classification tasks.
